A History of the Silsby Steamer from Clayton NY

Silsby engine #873 was received by Clayton, NY on April 6, 1887. Information found on the internet indicates it was built to be hand drawn. The engine was named "Calumet", and donated to the fire company by then to-

Message from the President:

It has now come time for us to shift our focus slightly. While it is still important for us to accumulate money, we now have to deal with the logistics of construction. We are developing relationships with government agencies that can help us move ahead with development at the Allaire site. At the same time we are actively looking for alternate locations. Concepts and plans for the Memorial are in process.

We acquired a piece of steel from the World Trade Center and our experience with trying to install it at the Allaire site has shown that planning cannot start too soon. The steel is now in storage and may be on display at a temporary site soon, but approval to move it to the Allaire site is still in our plans for the future.

We are continuing to actively promote the Museum and Memorial at fire service related events throughout the state. Our mobile displays include an 1854 hose carriage from Irvington, an 1860s Rumsey hand pumper, a 1960 Mack pumper and a 1974 Young pumper. Our fixed displays are a double decker hand pumper at the Trenton Fire Museum and a hose cart from Atlantic City at the Keyport Fire Museum. Take some time to see these examples of the many extraordinary pieces of fire apparatus in our collection.

Our website is constantly evolving but currently has a lot of good information including a short video of some of the apparatus the state has in storage.

I hope to see you in Wildwood. You can visit us in the convention center, at the Campbell Supply display area in the parking lots or at Brian Hanlon's space in the tents.

Sincerely,

Bob Burns,

President

From the Files of Ernie Day: Silsby Steamer from Clayton, New York

bacco magnate, Charles G. Emery, and owner of Calumet Island.

The engine fought its first fire just seven months later in November 1887. There was no warm place for storage, and the boiler had been drained when a fire broke out on a Sunday afternoon. In ten minutes the boiler was filled, and in another five minutes two streams of water were playing on the fire. On the St. Lawrence, Clayton's newspaper, printed a special fire supplement the next morning that included the following:

"The Silsby engine is now singing the same tune it started at sunset yesterday. Engineer Manson and Assistant Hill stood by the Silsby engine from Sunday's sunset until Monday's daylight.

"If there exists a man in Clayton, who will today utter one syllable against the Silsby engine, let him be chained to a good reliable telegraph pole and let the said engine play the same kind of a stream of water upon him for 18 mortal hours that it put on the fire last evening. Shame on the man who will speak a word thereafter derogatory of this most complete and magnificently appointed machine.

"A Lowville gentleman, who saw the Silsby perform last night declared it to be one of the finest machines he ever saw and much better that the engine in his native borough."

A prize of $10 was offered for the first team to reach the engine after an alarm was sounded. By the time the team got the engine to the fire, the steam was up and the pump would be ready to work.

The pumper subsequently fought fires on islands along the St. Lawrence River. The men and the equipment would be loaded onto scows or barges and transported to the scene, a very time-consuming task.

The Silsby fought its last fire in May 1921 at Depauville, after being towed there by truck. They had to stop twice on the way because the wheels overheated.

In December of 1941 the Clayton Fire Department offered to sell the steamer to Ernie Day in response to an ad Ernie placed in the December issue of Fire Engineering. They offered to load it F. O. B. Cars Clayton for the sum of 100 dollars. Other letters indicate the fire department offered to pay any freight over $20. The shipping bill shows a weight of 6000 lbs. at a rate of $1.03 per lb. for a total shipping cost of $61.80.

There was no lettering on the Silsby when Ernie Day received it, and he had 'Clayton Fire Dept' lettered on the boiler. In 1958 he paid $36 to have a body shop paint the four wheels.

In 1985, when the steamer was turned over to the state, the two running lights were packed separately and will be remounted when it is put on display.

Ernie Day also used pictures of the Silsby steamer on trays he made to promote what he was calling "The Ernest N. Day State Fire Engine Museum".
